Brushes - Image Editing Techniques

1. Filters and masking A masking technique shows you which areas of the image are transparent. You can then add more transparency in other areas by using the paint bucket tool. You can use selection by color, texture, or color mode. Another common filter is blur. The blur filter makes adjacent pixels of the image the same color. You can enhance transparency by using the levels feature.
2. Adjustment layers Another way to adjust images is with adjustment layers. You can adjust shadows, and highlights, white balance, and more.
3. Adjustment brush An adjustment brush changes the way an entire area of the image appears. For example, the Area Selection tool is used to select an area of your image. You can change that area's brightness or saturation. The brush allows you to adjust all the pixels in an area. You can use a brush with a particular preset, or you can click the eyedropper tool, and select the color of a pixel you want to change.
4. Motion blur Motion blur blurs along with the movement of your subject. To use a motion blur effect, click a Color Tab and select Motion Blur.
5. Vectors Vectors are rounded objects that are colored. You can use the vector-drawing tools (freehand, straight, and polygonal) to make shapes. You can also convert a path or artwork into a vector object.
6. Layers Layers are groups of objects that you can place on your document.
7. Levels Levels, another filter in Photoshop, is used to change the overall contrast of an image.
8. Paint bucket The paint bucket tool is used to paint on an image, using one of a series of preset brushes. The preset brushes are black, white, red, yellow, and orange. These brushes are mostly for painting the foreground, background, or outlines of objects.
9. Adjustment palette The Adjustment palette, also known as the Hue/Saturation or Color/Lighting palettes, are used to adjust the colors in an image. The Hue/Saturation palette is used to change the color of your image, while the Color/Lighting palette is used to change the lightness and brightness of an image.
10. Lasso The L
